

Economics 142 - Spring 2019

Here are a few things to keep in mind about 142:

1. The faculty in economics do not allocate seats for our classes. I cannot let you in!! Only the departmental advisors can give you permission to enter the class.

2. There are always a lot of students who sign up but eventually drop because the class is hard and A LOT of work. In the past there have always been slots for students who want to enter the class. So if you want to take the class, be sure to attend the lectures and complete and submit the problem sets. We will keep track of all students (regardless of registration status) until week 4 of the term.

4. The class is substantially more work than a typical economics class. It also assumes relatively high levels of math and statistics. It is designed for more advanced students who want to develop skills in applied data analysis.
